

A RESEARCH FRAMEWORK FOR THE ARCHAEOLOGY OF THE EXTRACTIVE INDUSTRIES IN ENGLAND

A Seminar to be held on Saturday 21st January

at

The National Coal Mining Museum, Caphouse Colliery, Wakefield, WF4 4RH

10:30-11:00 Arrival and coffee

11:00 Introduction to the Archaeological Research Framework phase two - Peter Cloughton, NAMHO Project Director (10 mins)

11:10 The legacy of historic mineral extraction - the national context - Jon Humble, English Heritage (20 mins)

11:30 Recording and Understanding Historic Mines; Why Mine Historians need Archaeology and how Archaeologists benefit from Searching Archives – John Barnatt (30 mins)

12:00 The Legacy of English Coal – Mike Gill (25 mins)

12:25 No stone unturned? - there is evidence - but not a lot! .....the archaeology of bulk mineral extraction- Ian Thomas (25 mins)

12:50 Questions

1:00 Buffet lunch

1:30 Results of the Archaeological Research Assessment: a summary (north of England and the Midlands) – Phil Newman, NAMHO Project Officer (20 mins)

1:50 Afternoon session: A Research Agenda for the Archaeology of Mining and Quarrying in England. Discussion led by Professor Marilyn Palmer

3:00 Tea

Meeting close before 4:00

Please contact the Project Officer if you would like to attend, so that we know numbers for catering

Dr Phil Newman (NAMHO Project Officer) phil.newman@blueyonder.co.uk 07730 978321